

Mar 15, 2022

Expect Great Spring Skiing At These Eastern Ski Resorts

Roger Sands Contributor Travel

With bases of three feet or more at many ski resorts throughout the east, spring skiing should prove to be a fun time for all downhill enthusiasts. With spring officially beginning March 20, ski resorts are currently stockpiling as much snow as possible via snowmaking and by moving snow to strategic places in order to prepare for the ever-popular spring skiing festivities. These often include sloppy slaloms and on-mountain scavenger hunts.

Bolstered by warmer weather and sunny skies, spring is one of the most enjoyable times of the year for skiers, many of whom wear silly costumes or light clothing. And just because there may not be snow in your backyard doesn't mean there isn't plenty of the white stuff on the mountain. These eastern ski resorts are well prepared for fabulous spring skiing.

Spring skiers soak in the sun at Camelback Resort.

CAMELBACK RESORT

Camelback Resort in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania plans to stay open through March if Mother Nature cooperates. The mountain is in great shape as it received two sizable snowfalls over the past two weeks. A Pond Skimming event is planned for March 19. A typical spring skiing day at Camelback means the sun is out with temps in the mid-40's during the day. Snow is soft under the ski or board but firm enough to hold an edge. It's a great time to learn to ski or board or just enjoy the mountain, as it's less crowded than January and February.

Spring skiing is ideal for testing your skills.